LITTLE J. BREECHES FORAKER is a daisy without brains.

POLITICAL economy.—Getting affidavits of convicts.

BE sure to attend the election early on Tuesday next.

REPUBLICANS laugh when Democrats scratch their tickets.

EVERY candidate deserves your support, and should receive it.

STATESMANSHIP—educating convicts how to testify against Democrats.

REMEMBER that next Tuesday is election day, and be at the polls early.

—It is easier to let a prisoner escape than to pardon him, sometimes.

THE outlook for a grand Democratic success this fall is very bright.

ALL Democrats should leave their lead-pencils at home on election day.

IF we all do our duty, our whole duty, Ohio will go Democratic next Tuesday.

REPUBLICANS never scratch tickets; let Democrats profit by their example.

ASK a Republican what political policy is advocated by his party in this campaign.

REMEMBER that the only issue the Republicans represent is a tissue of lying charges against the Democrats.

"An eye for an eye," "A tooth for a tooth," SKIN FOR SKIN—all that a man hath will be give to get out of the O. P.

DEMOCRATS, see to it that every member of the party is at the election and votes an unscratched ticket from top to bottom.

THE lack of principles, political and other, account for the campaign of LIES inaugurated by the Foraker-convict gang.

"MAKE way for liberty," and come forth from the environments of the O. P. by making a good strong affidavit against Democrats.

How the intense love of the average Republican is warmed into active energy by thoughts of the poor—down trodden—convict.

WHILE the Democratic ticket is sure of a good majority all around still the more votes there are the larger will that majority be.

DECENT men turn away in disgust from the black lies of this campaign told by little Billy Cappeller and Little J. Breeches Foraker.

THE Foraker gang let the convict Francis quietly escape from the Columbus court house, and the guards won't be discharged either.

How many Democrats in Hocking county want to identify themselves with the skin-cane falsehood and the Penitentiary convict hallucination.

WHEN a murderer escapes from the O. P. the State Republican administration at once tears open the treasury and offers a reward of $50.00 for his capture.

IN the theory of our government every man is a sovereign, but he can only maintain his sovereignty by attending the election and voting.

THE g. o. p. being as totally devoid of principles as is the Maple in mid-winter of verdure, have attempted to run a campaign on lies and misrepresentation.

ONLY a few days more until we will close our great sale of cheap pardons. Every horse-thief and desperado should avail himself, of this last opportunity.

IF you believe it to be wrong to induce convicts in the Pen to perjure themselves for the sake of a promised pardon, vote the Democratic ticket Tuesday next.

THE O. P. skin story has made many of the Republicans so sick that they will be unable to get to the polls. Let Democrats be on hand and vote the whole ticket.

IN a wild and frantic appeal to the Republican voters of Ohio, Willie Boodle Cappeller closes by saying: "A light vote will make the result doubtful." This is the exact size of the approaching trouble in Ohio.

A QUARTER of a million deficiency in the Treasury by February 15th, and half a million deficiency by June 15th, 1887, is the cheerful promise which "skin-cane" Foraker holds out to the tax-payers of Ohio.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

DEMOCRATS in every neighborhood should see to it that every Democrat who is unable to attend the election on Tuesday next has the opportunity to attend. You who can, attend in a conveyance of some kind and take your neighbor with you.

WE pity the g. o. p. First—the John McBride lawsuit—failure! 2d, skin-cane lie—failure! 3rd, Columbus Tally-sheet forgery cases before a grand jury—failure! 4th, Columbus Tally-sheet forgeries before J. P. cases supported by the testimony of murderers and thieves failure! failure!!

THE prospect of constructing the Lancaster and Hamden railroad appears to be favorable. An enthusiastic meeting was held at Allensville on the 15th inst., at which $825 of stock was subscribed. On the Wednesday following a meeting was held at Hamden and a vote of thanks tendered Oscar Meese, Esq., for his untiring efforts in behalf of the road. Everybody seems to feel encouraged.—McArthur Enquirer.

DEMOCRATS, it is now time to be up and doing. Your opponents are wide awake and are working every conceivable scheme to beat some of the nominees on the Democratic ticket. There is no lie too big for them to tell if thereby they think they can make a break in the Democratic ranks. Don't be deceived by any story you hear for there is not a man on the Democratic ticket but that is honest and capable of filling the office to which he aspires.

WE should suppose that Mr. Blaine had pretty good personal reasons for realizing that the Republican party is not in power. But, probably from the force of habit, he goes right on claiming for his party credit for the fact that "the Government bonds are worth nearly 130" and that the Treasury is strong. The business men of the country realize, if Mr. Blaine does not, that for three years the Democrats have had control of Congress and for a year and a half of the Executive Department. And they will profit by the return of business prosperity as much as the Republicans lost by its prolonged absence.

Drunkness Must Cease

Drunkness is no longer fashionable or respectable in this country. Even in the national convention of distillers and brewers now in session in Chicago no one is found to defend excessive drinking.

The temporary chairman, in making his opening speech, declared in favor of providing remedies for the abuses of the liquor traffic. He also expressed the hope that the convention would emphatically and unequivocally declare itself as opposed to the slum and dive, and as ready to join hands with any one if necessary to get rid of such parasites. Another speaker said "eliminate the evils as far as possible, and let the business alone." Whatever may be thought of this method of dealing with the question it is certainly significant as showing that low saloons and brutal debauchery and drunkenness must go, being under the condemnation of popular opinion and not even defended but denounced by those engaged in the liquor traffic. The man who is an habitual drunkard is not respected, and is shunned even by moderate drinkers. "I cannot bear to talk to a drunken man," is a common expression even among men who, themselves drink, and in the growth of this sentiment is the surest and most potent power against the evils of intoxication, a remedy more powerful by far than any or all political prohibition that can be practiced or preached.

Wages in the South.

The Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times is entitled to the credit of proving that when Mr. Blaine tells the workmen of Pittsburgh that their labor is brought in competition with that of negroes "in Birmingham, Ala., Chattanooga, Tenn., and various parts of Virginia, where they are making pig-iron at wages of from 60 to 70 cents a day," and when the New York Tribune brilliantly asserts that the colored laborer "gets over 100 per cent less wages than is paid in the north for similar work," they don't know what they are talking about. Our Chattanooga contemporary, after investigating the subject in that locality, says: "The lowest wages paid to colored laborers in any industry is 90 cents a day, and this covers only a few at the South Tredgar works. The greater number of colored men employed at these works receive wages running from $2 to $3 a day, with a large number at the intermediate rates of $1.25 to $1.50 a day. Colored laborers at the Chattanooga furnace get $1.25 and $1.50 and $2 a day. Colored boys in the South Tredgar works, working as feeders, get 75 cents to $1.25 a day. Some colored men make as high as $4 a day as puddlers and foundrymen."

Mr. Blaine and the Tribune are guilty, therefore, of a deliberate and willful misrepresentation in their reprehensible attempt to inflame northern working people against the south, and the falsehood has been exposed sooner than they expected. Pittsburgh and Chattanooga are several hundred miles apart, but Mr. Blaine evidently forgot that there is a telegraph between them.

A Political Ghost.

When the ordinary citizen is considering to which of the party candidates he shall give his support he necessarily considers what are the assumed positions of the various claimants for his favor.

The honest, thoughtful man cannot help but be impressed with the charnel house surroundings of the Republican party, and its ghostly claims for recognition. When asked what policy does the Republicans advocate to induce the well meaning citizen to follow its fortunes and rally under its banner, its continual and agonizing cry is, "Oh, we fought the war, if it had not been for us we would have no government." Suppose the foregoing claim is true, as it is not, (for the records show that more Democrats held position in the ranks in the late war and bore the burden of, and bared the bosom in the conflict than there were Republicans,) the thoughtful man is confronted with the fact that the old Republican party is past. Where are the old leaders? Lincoln, Seward, Stevens, Coffay, Chase and a host of others are sleeping their dreamless sleep, and the party of to-day is as different from the party of a quarter of a century ago as is the light and heat of the unobstructed noonday sun from the pale cheerless rays of a crescent moon. Then their leaders were controlled by honesty of purpose and an open advocacy of principle.

Now dishonesty and prevarication characterizes their leaders, from little J. Breeches Foraker and W. S. Patent Plates, to the least 6x8 ward politician. With the leaders, the open consort of the worst class of criminals, whom the laws of the land has excluded from society, and making overtures, concessions and bargains with murderers and horse thieves for lying affidavits against men more honest than the self same leaders; with the private Secretary of the Governor and the stenographic clerk of his office, making frequent visits to the Pen, in company with W. S. Cappeller, the chairman of the Republican State Ex. Committee, in the night season when by prison rules the gates are closed and cells barred, are enough to put honest men on their guard as to their methods and result.

Crime and dishonesty ever seek darkness to secure their ends, and the effort to convert the State Prison into a machine to boom the Republican campaign is no exception to the general rule.

Let HONEST MEN think before they vote and then leave this efete party in the grave yard of the past where it belongs.

John Francis the O. P. convict who has testified to Democrats being concerned in the tally sheet forgeries, was taken from the pen to the Court House at Columbus Tuesday and while there made his escape being recaptured at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning. From the Columbus Times we learn that:

Yesterday morning, Francis obtained a private interview with Michael Cassidy, an ex-guard to whom he made the following statement: "I wish you would go into the court room and say to Deputy Warden Marriot that I was treated well under the Penitentiary administration and I will not again commit perjury to injure him. Say to him that I know this whole thing is a conspiracy, without any foundation in truth and if I am placed upon the witness stand I will explode everything." Francis made substantially the same statement to another ex-guard, Abner Doolittle. It looks very much as if Foraker's henchmen had an elephant on their hands that they desire to be rid of.

Put a Muzzle on Him.

ONE enthusiastic Republican paper declares that Mr. Blaine's visit to Pennsylvania has been worth 10,000 votes to Beaver. The managers thought that Mr. Blaine's visit to New York state in 1884 would be worth 10,000 votes. They brought him in, but Belghaziar's Feast and Burchard were not counted on and Mr. Blaine lost the Presidency. Blaine is a provoker of enthusiasm, but he is a dangerous man to lead about the country.

The New College Paper.

We are in receipt of the first number of the College Current, an interesting monthly, issued from the Ohio University, and devoted to college interests and educational matters generally. It is a sprightly paper of sixteen square octavo pages, filled with interesting matter. The present number contains a portrait of W. H. McGuffey, together with a sketch of his life. We are pleased to note, for the honor of Hocking County that A. Leonard occupies the position of Literary Editor. The paper will be issued during the "college year" for $1. in advance.

READ CAREFULLY.

Look Out for Spurious Tickets.

It is an old trick with the Republicans to have Democratic tickets with some names erased and others inserted. Let every Democrat read the whole ticket through carefully and see that there are no scratches or erasures on it and vote the whole ticket.

The Democratic party is now before the people, and by their votes on Tuesday will it be judged. The whole effort of the Administration has been to curtail the expenses and lighten the burdens of the citizens. If you believe this is true economy and honest administration vote the Democratic ticket.

THE Republican gangsters claim as a matter of course, that $1,000,000 deficiency annually isn't much for a rich and prosperous State like Ohio, especially when convicts from the penitentiary are employed to tell lies under oath about Democrats.—Cin. Enquirer.

The unmanly and mean efforts of Republican managers, headed by their slyster Governor, Foraker, to traduce the Democracy by wholesale lying and iniquity, should stimulate every Democrat to vigorous action, this fall, and to resent these villainous attacks, by opposing to a man every Republican candidate.

Gov. Foraker now goes by the name of skin-cane. It will hang to him as long as he lives. How a man can make a fool of himself when he tries, and thereby cut short his political career. Foraker is politically dead. Even Republicans are ashamed of him and will not ask his re-nomination for Governor.

Thirty years ago last Monday, under the Democratic administration the McArthur flouring mill was put in operation, and ran day and night. It is now under another Democratic administration, again running day and night, requiring two sets of hands, as of yore.
